

Tiki Welcome

To learn what you can expect from Tiki (and what we expect from you, as a community member), please read our Social Contract.

Using this website, tiki.org

Tiki.org is powered by Tiki Wiki CMS Groupware, so it can show new users what a Tiki site looks like and how it works, from the perspective of a registered user. Feel free to check out the various features, etc. But please, for experimenting with wiki page content and so on, use your personal user page — Userpage. The page is linked from your User Information page. You are the sole author and administrator of your user page and you can use it as a personal profile page as well as to try out wiki editing, using wiki plugins, and so on. It will be visible to the public.

Getting help

Tiki is very powerful and includes more out-of-the-box features than any other application (that we're aware of). If you need help:

Account information

Your registration gives you access to the other tiki.org sites. With one username and password, you can log in to the Development site, Themes site, Documentation site, and others.

Getting involved

Now that you're a registered member of the Tiki community, you can help:

Tiki is also active on social networks such as Twitter and Facebook. Visit Social Networks to follow Tiki and become a fan!

Thanks again, and welcome!