Well this is a first for me. I'm developing a Linux Help site for a corporate Intranet and figured it would be a good idea to get involved a bit more with the application I am using.

I'm a Unix sys admin that has been plugging away at UNIX for over 19 years now. Currently I am a Linux Architect at a major Software company. What that means is that I get to design systems for them to use on top of Linux and other Unix systems.
