Our Tiki is a project which I and others are setting up on behalf of the Disaster Accountability Project, a new non-profit whose goals are transparency, efficiency and effective in disaster preparation and relief efforts. We hope to use the Wiki - in conjunction with our blogs and other activities - as a best-practices database, and try to encourage contributions and use by every segment of the disaster preparedness community - which is to say everyone who cares about these issues(s).

We're sure to need some help as we get this going - and would like to thank the TikiWiki community for getting this impressive tool this far.
