

Hi there,

My real name is Lee Wilson and I am a software development business analyst here in New Zealand. My main job is to management requirements and systems analysis and design to ensure software development meets the client's expectations.

I am really impressed with Tikiwiki functionality and development philosophy and believe it is a shining example of what open source development achieve. Check out my website at <http://www.etc.net.nz>

My interests in content management systems and groupware is about providing the right information at the right time. I believe that technology like this can be used to great advantage in business and educational settings.

Contact Lee

PS

 This is mose's cool thumb plugin with a picture of the real me. Find out what I am up to at TikiWiki Blog